over those assembled there, before the dauntless courage of his eye, and the glorious patriotism of his countenance, treason and traitors crouched like whipped hounds in their kennels.

His term of office in the Senate expired on the 4th of March thereafter, and he intended, as he then informed me, with the close of that term to close his career as a public man. But, scarcely had he returned to his home, when, wretched around the ramparts of Sumner was seen the smoke of battle, and the roar of the artillery that battered his walls, was echoed and re-echoed all over our land, rousing all eyes, even the greatest slumber among the people—in the dangers threatening the Commonwealth. In rapid succession State after State attempted, by ordinances of secession, to dissolve their connection with the Federal Union. Shocked and paralyzed for a time, the people of Kentucky stood, while traitors who would fatten upon the blood that flows from a wounded country, sought to tear down the peerless ensign of our nationality, and on the soil of our own proud Commonwealth—aye, even here in the Ashland district, where he resided, they dared to declare that the Union was dissolved, and that the people of Kentucky were in a state of rebellion.

The people of this district, in this great emergency, called upon Mr. Crittenden, and placed him at the head of the movement for the maintenance of Kentucky's loyalty. And he did not respond to the call. For when he heard the sounds of strife, marked his country's agonizing woe, and like John's war horse, from afar off, snuffed the dust that blew from the ranks of the Union army, he was filled with a noble fire of youth and patriotism. He saw the smoke of battle, and the roar of the artillery that battered his walls, was echoed and re-echoed all over our land, rousing all eyes, even the greatest slumber among the people—in the dangers threatening the Commonwealth. In rapid succession State after State attempted, by ordinances of secession, to dissolve their connection with the Federal Union. Shocked and paralyzed for a time, the people of Kentucky stood, while traitors who would fatten upon the blood that flows from a wounded country, sought to tear down the peerless ensign of our nationality, and on the soil of our own proud Commonwealth—aye, even here in the Ashland district, where he resided, they dared to declare that the Union was dissolved, and that the people of Kentucky were in a state of rebellion.

The Vilest Ingratitude.

EXTRACT FROM A THANKSGIVING SERMON.

When I look back to the condition of our beloved country but a few short years ago, when I remember that on the 4th of July, 1861, the corner stone of a new Capitol building was laid in Washington, and underneath it was deposited an inscription written by Daniel Webster, in these words: "On this day the Union of the United States stands firm, their Constitution exists unimpaired, with all its original usefulness and glory, growing every day stronger and stronger in the hearts of the American people;" when I reflect on the peace, the prosperity, the social and civil happiness that pervaded the wide expanse of the American Union, penetrating the remotest mountain, and valley, and prairie, and forest, under the benign protection of a Government that was felt by the good only as it blessed them with its shield, and secured them the fruit of their labors, while it took from them nothing which it was not a privilege to bestow, when I contrast the astonishing progress of this people in numbers and wealth, in the arts and conveniences and luxuries of civilized life; when I bear in mind that the dreams of sages and philosophers of former generations had at last become realities, and the desire of man had been accomplished in the establishment of a government that governed just enough, and even that was self-possessed, when I contemplate the fact that all parts of this extended country had an equal voice in the administration of its affairs, and that no section could justly complain, no least of all the Southern, that it had not its proper share in its legislation, and then when I see the fair face of this beautiful and happy land suddenly swept with the besom of war, the foundations of the Union shaken by an earthquake, the brilliant sky surcharged with angry clouds from which issue thunders and lightnings, and a horrible tempest, when I see half a million of my countrymen lying in their blood, ghastly sacrifices to the Moloch of war, families torn asunder and friendships broken forever, cripples and mourners going about the street, when I hear the sound of the cannon and the wail of the dying, and know that a million of my brethren are now in arms for each other's destruction, I feel that the men who broke the peace of this country and plunged it into this fratricidal strife, were guilty of INGRATITUDE more base and cruel than God or man ever saw before.

It was ingratitude to man; it was vile ingratitude to God. But we who cling to the Union as to the ark of our safety, with cheerful trust in God, we thank him for mercies past and future, and we bless him that our Government still lives. We will stand by it with God, and right on our side, and if it is, which may heaven forbid, we will not survive the wreck in which the hopes of freedom will go down forever.

Lord Palmerston, the Premier of England, has entered on his eightieth year. His birth day was October, 1784. The London papers regard it as significant of his intention to hold power as long as possible, that he has recently applied for a new lease of his town residence (Cambridge House), at an annual rent of $11,500. The Premier is yet full of energy, with a liveliness and freshness of spirit that is truly wonderful. Still, many in England are looking forward to the contingencies that may attend his decease, suggested probably, by the two or three attacks of gout which he has suffered during the past year, and by the obviously uncertain tenure of life at such an advanced age.

With Lord Palmerston's disappearance from the stage, it is believed that the coalition between the Whigs and Liberals Conservatives would come to an end. It is doubtful if any Premier could be selected from the same party, who could be expected to sustain himself, although Mr. Gladstone has been pointed to as his most eligible successor. The downward Conservative are in training for the political convulsion ahead, under the leadership of Lord Derby and Mr. Disraeli. But Lord Palmerston's gray hair, though enough to bring in a new Parliament, which may be stronger for his party than the present.

LARGE CONFLAGRATION at Frankfort, Ky.—Toward House Destroyed—Loss $75,000.—We learn that a fire broke out in Frankfort, Ky., about 2 o'clock Thursday morning, and, before the flames could be arrested, nearly the entire south side of the square was in ruins, six business houses, three dwellings, and three others being totally destroyed. The loss is put down at $75,000. The fire originated from a stove pipe—L. Herald Journal.

News from Gen. Banks in Texas continues good. He has captured Corpus Christi and several smaller places. The Texans are exhibiting strong evidences of Unionism wherever the army marches—so much so that arms and equipments for them, particularly for the cavalry service, are being sent to them.

The latest style of hoop skirts is the self-adjusting, double-back-action, bustle-cruscar, face expansion, Piccolomini attaching, gossamer-inextinguishable, poloeticno rami. It is said to be a very charming thing.

The Qualities of Our Soldiers.

Europeans, says the Philadelphia News, who derive their main ideas of the qualities of their soldiers from the steady battalions which are constantly reviewed in their state cities, contend that endurance in a soldier depends upon the continued and careful training of years. They little regard the untrained, undisciplined masses of a Republic like the young star of America, whose liberties are enjoyed under a government so beneficent that its restraints are never experienced, and where standing armies and governmental levies are unknown. "Troops will not bear the dangers of camp and field," said the London Times, when rebellion began, "without the rigorous discipline of years of service. The Americans, actuated by their impatience of tutelage, will willingly enter a service the attractions of which are everywhere in manifest; but the realities of war will dampen their ardor, and their endurance will never endure."

But the American soldiers, whose battle shout—Union, Constitution, Home—has thrilled the heart of a nation's million sons, never evidenced the truth of the reflective criticisms of foreign powers. Camp and field have witnessed their patient labor, their unmatchless valor, and their exultant triumph. Their fame is as enduring as the granite hills of the Keystone. The waves that beat New England's busy coast have chanted its glories. The fertile plains of the midland and the border have resounded with the narrations of their children's victories. From the Northern frontier and the Western prairies, to the sunny shores where the Pacific's golden sands make earth an Eldorado, is the memory of the valor and the heroic gallantry of American volunteers perpetuated.

Yorktown's ramparts, strong and impregnable as the proudest citadels of Europe, fell before the skill of Northern engineers. Through fire and flame Beaufort's harbor was won. The volunteers worked on the yielding morass of Tybee until the earth was rendered firm enough to bear the weight of the ordnance which humbled the flag that floated over Pulaski's defiant walls. New Orleans acknowledged the impetuous valor of the Union navy. The batteries that, frowning from every bluff along the Mississippi's course, were successively carried by the Western armies, from Island No. 10 to Vicksburg and Port Hudson, attest the patient courage of the soldiers who possessed them. Gilmore's achievements before Fort Wagner, and the tireless industry that gave that fortification to the Union and crumbled Sumpter's walls, are among the proudest pages of the history of the war.

And now, for desperate valor, Lookout mountain, stormed and won, remains an unchanging monument of the heroism of our Western troops. When Charleston is given over to the Union again, and Libby prison is atoned for in the ruin, carried by fire and sword to the heart of the rebel Capital, the story of American courage, endurance and valor will be complete. Ancient or modern history has no parallel to the American soldiers. Their achievements have made wondering Europe fear and tremble. Their recitals will be the nation's glory for all time to come.

We again call attention to the advertisement of two concerts to be given in our city to night and to-morrow night by Rumsey's Minstrel. We have seen notices of them in our exchanges of a highly complimentary character, and we have no doubt that all who love good music will be amply remunerated for attending their concerts.

We have been requested to publish the following by an esteemed friend, which we do to oblige him, and for his honor.

[Ed. Commonwealth.]

APPLICATION FOR EXEMPTION.

The undersigned claims exemption from the draft for the following reasons:

I. I have a widowed mother who supports me.

II. I have a widowed father who also supports me.

III. My great grandfather was born in Ireland, and I am now a resident of South Carolina, where I pay my taxes and have my washing done—therefore I claim to be a British subject.

IV. I was in the Kentucky State militia for thirty-seven days, and attended one general muster, and was mustered out two years before the present rebellion commenced, without pay or bounty—wherefore I claim an exemption and a pension.

V. Fifteen years ago I had the measles and whooping cough, and I think I would have them again were I to go out in the draft—wherefore I claim exemption for disability.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Additional grounds:

VI. Some ten years ago, while playing "vint-un," or "twenty-one," an innocent and popular diversion, I held nineteen "draw," and "burstled"—wherefore I claim exemption as ruptured.

VII. I have been told that the foregoing application for exemption is a burlesque, but not being able to see it, I claim exemption on the ground of near sightness.

X. M. T.

We call attention to the advertisement of Samuel F. Cary & Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio. Gen. S. F. Cary is well known in Kentucky as a distinguished Orator and Lecturer.

The Richmond Enquirer of pose giving the Federal prisoners any more Federal stores. The great danger, no doubt, being that the Rebels would rather be Federal prisoners so fed than to remain as they are, on their miserable and uncertain rations.

LATEST NEWS.

XXXVIIIth Congress—First Session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.

SENATE.—Mr. Dixon presented the petition of a large number of assessors and assistant assessors, asking for an increase of compensation.

Mr. Dixon also gave notice of a bill amending the conscription act in such manner as to exempt all clergymen.

On motion of Mr. Foster, the Senate proceeded to the election of the following committees:

Resolved, That the gratitude of the people and the thanks of the Representatives in Congress are due and are hereby tendered to Major General Hooker and the officers and soldiers of the Army of the Potomac for the skill, energy, and endurance, which first protected Washington and Baltimore from the meditated blow of the advancing and powerful army of the rebels, led by Gen. Lee, and to General Meade and the officers and soldiers of that army for the skill and heroic valor which, at Gettysburg, repulsed, defeated, and drove back, broken, and dispersed, beyond the Rappahannock, the veteran army of the rebels.

The resolution was referred to the Military Committee.

Mr. Wilson introduced a joint resolution that the thanks of Congress be proffered to Major General Banks, and the officers and soldiers under his command, for the skill, courage, and endurance, which compelled the surrender of Port Hudson and then removed the last obstruction to the free navigation of the Mississippi river. Referred to the Military Committee.

Mr. Nesmith presented a petition for the establishment of a port of entry at Port Land Oregon, and gave notice of a bill to establish a branch mint there.

Mr. Doolittle called up the joint resolution from the House, presenting a gold medal and the thanks of Congress to General Grant, which was referred to the Military Committee.

Mr. Lane, of Indiana, introduced a bill to amend the enrollment act so as to strike out the 300 commutation and to increase the pay of the rank and file of the army, of which he had given previous notice.

On motion of Mr. Sumner, that portion of the President's message relating to naval affairs was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. Grimes introduced his bill to encourage enlistments in the naval service, and give credit for the same on military quotas of the respective States.

Mr. Hale having obtained consent, introduced a bill more effectually to suppress the rebellion by prohibiting the holding in servitude of any persons in the country except on contract. Ordered to be printed.

Mr. Wilkinson introduced a bill to extend the benefits of the act of Congress, July 2d, 1862, granting pensions to persons wounded in the Indian war in Minnesota. Referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Adjourned.

HOUSE.—A large number of resolutions on various subjects were introduced, and referred.

Mr. Fernando Wood introduced a resolution, this evening, for the appointment of commissioners, to go to Richmond with a view of arranging for termination of this bloody, desolating, and insane war, and the securing of peace, under the constitution, upon terms of justice and equality.

Mr. Washburne moved to lay the resolution on the table. Carried: yeas 93, nays 90.

The Speaker announced the Committees, the Chairmen of which are as follows:

A large number of bills, and business on numerous subjects, were introduced.

Morrill introduced a resolution authorizing the President to give the Government the notice required for the termination of the reciprocity treaty of June 5th, 1854, and moved its reference to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. Ward moved an amendment to refer the resolution to the Committee on Commerce. Adopted.

He also introduced a joint resolution for the appointment of commissioners to negotiate a new treaty of reciprocity with Great Britain for the British provinces of Upper Canada, based on the true principles of reciprocity. Referred to Committee on Commerce.

Mr. Elliott introduced a bill to establish a bureau on emancipation. Referred to Select Committee.

Mr. Davis introduced a bill prohibiting an election of representatives from Tennessee and Louisiana. Referred to Committee on Elections.

Mr. Stevens introduced a bill, granting land in aid of the People's Pacific Railroad Company by the northern route. Referred to Select Committee.

Mr. Stevens also introduced a bill fixing the pay of colored chaplains and musicians. Referred to Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. Stevens also introduced a bill to fix the time for holding elections of representatives to Congress, and to enable soldiers to vote for State officers. Referred to Committee on Judiciary.

Many other bills were introduced and referred, including a bill enabling Colorado and Nebraska to form State governments, and to provide for their admission into the Union, and a bill providing a temporary government for the territory of Montana, both of which were referred to the Committee on Territories; also a bill providing for the recruiting of negroes in insurrectionary districts, which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. Yeaman introduced a bill for the restoration of civil authority in such States as are not under control of the rebellion. Referred to Committee on Judiciary.

Several bills were referred to the Committee on Judiciary to repeal the Fugitive Slave Law, and amend the constitution so as to abolish slavery in all the States.

Mr. Lovejoy introduced a bill providing that all persons held in slavery in the States and Territories shall be declared free. All persons so declared shall be protected the same as white men are by the Constitution. Any one seizing such freed persons to reduce them to slavery shall be declared guilty of high misdemeanor, and, on conviction, punished. Also a bill to protect freed men and provide for the punishment of those who attempt to enslave them. Referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. Arnold introduced a bill to aid the President in carrying out the immediate execution of the Emancipation Proclamation of January 1st, 1863, and prohibiting the re-enslavement of persons designated therein. Referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Mr. Washburne, of Illinois, introduced a bill reviving the grade of Lieutenant-Generals, and authorizing the President to confer it on any officer not below the grade of a Major General, who has distinguished himself by courage, skill, &c. Referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. Wilson introduced a bill to amend the constitution declaring slavery incompatible with free government, and is, therefore, prohibited in the United States, except for the punishment of crimes, and Congress shall have power to enforce this provision by appropriate legislation. Referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Fernando Wood submitted the following resolution:

Whereas, The President, in his message delivered to this House on the 9th inst., in his recommendation to the people to assemble at their places of worship to give thanks to God for recent victories, claims that the Union cause has gained important and substantial advantages; and, whereas, in view of these triumphs, it is no longer beneath our dignity nor dangerous to our safety to show a generous magnanimity, becoming a great and powerful people, by offering to the insurgents an opportunity to return to the Union without imposing upon them degrading or destructive conditions; therefore—

Resolved, That the President be requested to appoint three commissioners who shall be empowered to open negotiations with the authorities at Richmond to the end that this bloody destructive and inhuman war shall cease, and the Union be restored upon terms of equity, fraternity, and equality under the constitution.

Mr. Washburne, of Illinois, moved that the resolution be laid on the table. Agreed—yeas 98, nays 59.

On motion of Mr. Cravens, a resolution was adopted instructing the Committee on Military Affairs to inquire into the expediency of providing for the payment of losses of property taken or destroyed during Morgan's raid in Ohio and Indiana.

Mr. Holmes offered a resolution, that this is not a war of subjugation, but, as soon as the enemy lay down their arms, it ought to cease. Laid over.

Mr. Fincke offered a resolution much to the same effect. Laid over.

A resolution was offered that the Senate concurring, when the House adjourn on Friday, it be to Wednesday, the 6th day of January. Passed by yeas 90 to 44.

The House then adjourned.

FATAL ACCIDENT ON THE LEBANON RAILROAD.—As the train from Lebanon reached New Hope Monday evening, a brakeman, named John M. Toie, of this city in descending from the top of a freight car, missed his footing, and fell between the cars, seven of them passing over him. It was his first trip on the road, and he had been cautioned by Mr. Knott, the conductor, against ascending to the top of the cars, except in cases of necessity. His body was fearfully mutilated. Both legs and arms were broken, and the right leg severed at the thigh. The remains were brought to this city yesterday.

MARRIED.

On Tuesday, Dec. 15th, by Rev. Henry Adams, George V. RABBIT, of Nashville, T. Tenn., to Miss HELENA G. TRAVIS, of Louisville, Ky.

The total debt on the 30th of June, 1864, is estimated at $1,636,956,641, and on the 30th June, 1865, at $2,231,935,190. The internal revenue has fallen far below the estimates, and it is recommended that an increased duty be put upon distilled liquors, tobacco and petroleum.

President Lincoln has signed the pardon of Gen. Gantt of Arkansas, who had incurred the penalty of treason, and he is reinstated in all his rights of property, except those relating to slaves.

Fur Collar Lost.

LOST, on Monday afternoon, a FUR COLLAR, between the railroad depot and Gen. P. Dudley's residence. The fur will be suitably rewarded by leaving it at the residence of Gen. Dudley. R. T. DILLARD.
